MOKENA NEEDS MOVIE CENSOR

That Mokena is in need of a movie picture censor is the opinion of some of the local residents, since some very blood-curdling blood-and-thunder movies of Jesse James and his bandit gang and other hair-raising murder and bandit scenes are being shown by an itinerant movie show at the Hatch hall. These movies are in the same class with the old-time yellow-back dime novels which have contributed so much toward the crimes of youth committed in this country.

Movies depicting crime are not fit to be seen by the young boys and girls of the community, as they are too revolting and disgusting, to say the least. They convey just the opposite idea of what the school and the Sunday school is trying to instill in the minds of the young.

Pictures such as have been shown in Mokena would not be tolerated one minute in many of our cities, as the censors would debar them at once. Knowing they cannot show such kind of films in cities, the itinerant movie show people come to the country towns and pull off this stuff, thinking the country people do not know any better and like hair-raising and blood-curdling scenes.

Children have been allowed to spend their money to see something from which they cannot get anything good or wholesome, and which gives them a wrong conception of the good and true. Wicked things are heard of enough without parading them in front of our children.

If decent shows cannot be shown, then no shows should be allowed at all. Are you in favor of having your children see scenes of atrocious crimes, holdups, killings and the like?

CHICAGO RIDGE

Mr. Charles Kulbi was badly injured on Sept. 14th, at the New York Boiler Co. plant, where he works. He suffered the loss of an eye. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Shroder have gone to Minnesota, but expect to return soon.

The ice social given by the Chicago Ridge Sunday school, on Sept. 14th, in the school yard, was a great success. Here's hoping that in the near future we will have a nice church.

Mr. and Mrs. Polchow announce the marriage of their daughter, Anna, to Mr. Paul Bruggeman of Appleton, Wis., Oct. 28, 1922.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Aquina have gone to Detroit, Mich., but will return home shortly.

Goeselville A Second "Gold Coast"

Goeselville, north of Tinley Park, is getting to be a Summer colony. The farm which C. Goesel once owned, comprising 60 acres, has been so transformed that an old-timer would not recognize the same place. Mr. Spaulding, of the Spaulding Sporting Goods Co. of Chicago, sold this farm sometime ago to Mrs. Sullivan, widow of the late Roger Sullivan, famous Cook county politician, for $50,000. Mrs. Sullivan has had a Summer home, 100x75 feet, built this Summer, and has had many other improvements made. Mr. Fortrand, also of Chicago, is putting up two Summer homes. Henry Stricker of Tinley Park has been awarded a contract to do all the concrete work on these buildings, which are to be 44x25 feet. A garage 20x20 feet is also being built by Mr. Stricker. Another Chicago party is putting up a third Summer cottage. These cottages will be finished this Fall, and will be in use next Summer.

Will Ride on Same Road She Did 70 Years Ago

Mrs. W. W. Stevens of Hillbard Woods, Cook county, who as a girl in Joliet was a passenger on the Rock Island railroad's first passenger train on Oct. 10, 1852, has accepted the invitation of the railroad to ride on the special train which will duplicate the run of the original train on its 70th birthday. Mrs. Stevens has furnished from memory much of the material in the history which the road is issuing in connection with the celebration of the event.

Miles Knickerbocker of Mokena, aged 90 years, a former resident of New Lenox, was the first passenger from New Lenox to Chicago on the Rock Island's first passenger train, run Oct. 10, 1852.

October Moving Dates

October will rival May as a moving month in Tinley Park, when the following changes will take place: Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin, residing in the Steeckman flats, will move into the upstairs apartment of Mrs. Theis' residence; John Boyer will move into the lower flat of the new Theis building, and Mr. Rodan and family will occupy the upper flat. Henry Wyman will move into his mother's place, east of town, and the latter will make her home with her son. The Larry-smore family will move into the Andres building, vacated by the Wyman family.

Orland Victorious In Tournament

Tinley Park bowed to Orland in the championship Sunday afternoon baseball tournament. The Orland team, composed of the strong Lockport aggregation, one of the strongest sent-pro teams in the State. The games was only supposed to be seven innings, as two other games were to be played, but Tinley tied the score in the seventh, and lost out in the last half of the ninth. Following is the score by innings:

Tinley Park—
Hits—1 0 1 1 0 2 2 0 0—7
Runs—0 0 1 1 0 0 2 0 0—4
Orland—
Hits—4 1 0 0 0 0 1 1 1—8
Runs—4 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—5
Strikeouts—By Sloan, 12; by Kiel, 11.

Lost-A Washing Machine at Tinley

Here is a story of a disappearing wash machine: On Monday night, Messrs. Hasenpflug and Stricker were delivering a wash machine from the Vogt store to the Henry Bormet home. They had placed the machine on a flyover truck, and proceeded merrily along. They had not tied the machine down, figuring it would "ride" all right. Upon arriving at the Bormet place, they were astonished to find the machine missing when they went to unload it. Upon searching the road along which they had come, they found the machine lying in the road, badly damaged. The car striking a rut in the road, caused a severe jolt, which pitched the machine out of the flyover. The noise of the motor drowned out the sound of the falling wash machine.

Back to God's Time

We are going back to God's time Sunday when the standard time will be resumed. The Rock Island has an advertisement in this issue announcing the change in train time.

TINLEY PARK TO HOLD BASE BALL TOURNAMENT

Tinley Park is preparing for a big baseball tournament Sunday, when the Tinley Park Ramblers will hold a tournament, in which the Blue Island K. C. team, Frankfort, Tinley Park and a fourth team, yet to be named, will play. Some real exciting games are looked for. All the baseball fans are urged to come out.

Frankfort Road Accident Basis Of $10,000 Suit

Over a year ago, Mr. Regel, residing on a farm between Frankfort and Matteson, was seriously injured while driving with a horse and buggy on the Lincoln Highway east of Frankfort when an auto driven by Wm. Weissinger of Aurora hit the buggy. Mr. Regel was laid up for many weeks in a hospital. He has just instituted a damage suit against Mr. Weissinger thru Attorney A. H. Krusemark for $10,000.00.

TINLEY PARK ROAD WORK IS DELAYED

The Bachelor Grove road running thru Tinley Park has been ripped up preparatory to the laying of concrete, but the work on this road has been held up by lack of cement and stone. Saturday morning two carloads of cement arrived, but there is not enough stone on hand. It is estimated that the material on hand will build half a mile of road. The heavy rains of the last few days have made veritable mud puddles of the excavation. If bad weather should set in for any length of time, it is doubtful if the work will be completed this fall. The Tinley Park people hope, however, that the street will be completed, at least, as it would make it very inconvenient to have this thoroughfare remain torn up for the rest of the winter.

Have you joined?

The Tinley after Supper Club meets every evening, looking for new members. New members must treat the Club members to a feed, after which the Club does not care whether they come again or not. There is also a password, but that is secret, but it most likely has something to do about "cats."

Mokena School Board Buys Two Victrolas

The Mokena school is now having improvements which were never dreamed of. The past week the playground equipment, consisting of teter-toters, slides, etc., arrived and were installed. In addition to this, one of the most important and modern improvements was the purchasing of two Victrola phonographs for the school, to be used in teaching the pupils, not only music, but also the correct way in which to recite, march, etc. Educational records have been purchased, and are being used in connection with the regular studies. The children are being taught to march to the Victrola music. The teachers, as well as the pupils, are highly elated over the new innovation.

The playground equipment cost $350.00, and the Victrolas cost $115.00 each. The Board of Directors felt that this school should be in the lead, and should have every modern advantage, since it has long enough been in a rather backward state. More improvements have been made this fall than have been made in the last 20 years.

In addition to the foregoing, city water has been made use of and drinking fountains have been installed in the school, doing away with the old-time out-door pump. The new system is considered far more sanitary.

August Hentsch has been in charge of installing all the new improvements. He also has been in charge of repairing the school foundation, so that the building is now safe.

On Thursday night of this week Miss Margaret Streeter, representative of the Victrola people, held a lecture at the Hatch hall, in which she showed the educational value of the Victrola, and brought out many interesting points that answered questions in the minds of the parents. There was a good attendance. The Victrola was used to demonstrate just how it is used in school work. Mokena should be mighty proud that it has a live Board of Directors and a live school faculty.

Now, in order to put a climax to the notable progressive move in the betterment of the Mokena school, the News-Bulletin suggests that a Parent-Teachers' Association be organized, so that there will be a closer harmony and relationship between the parents and the teachers. If such an organization were organized, it would be a tremendous power for encouraging the teachers, as well as the students, for the highest and best endeavors in them for the very best in education. We cannot estimate in any given term the full power of a higher education. No matter how poor a man is in worldly goods, if he has a rich education, it is something of which no one can rob him, and with which he can always make his way in life. It is education that makes civilization and progress.

All those who signed the subscription list for the playground equipment fund and who have not paid their subscriptions as yet, are kindly asked to do so. They can pay their subscription to any member of the School Board. All those who wish to hand in a subscription can do so yet.

Adds new bull to herd

A fine young bull has just been added to the Cleveland herd of Holsteins now in charge of Jay Butler. The new bull is a grandson of King Calantha Lyons, whose family has produced some great records, and comes from a Federal accredited herd.

Tinley Park Man Raises Sweet Potatoes

That the Southland is not the only place in which sweet potatoes can be raised has been demonstrated by Henry Wyman of Tinley Park, who experimented in raising this kind of a potato this Summer. He surprised his neighbors by producing as fine a sweet potato as can be found in the South. Four large potatoes were found under a hill as an average yield.

RADIO

THREE SOURCES OF PLATE POTENTIAL

Use of Step-Up Transformer and Rectifying Tubes Recommended for Amateurs.

The greatest drawback in the use of vacuum tubes for radio transmitters is a suitable source of direct current potential for the plate circuits. In general there are three sources, batteries, a motor-generator set, and rectified alternating current. The alternating house lighting current can be stepped up to the required potential by means of a transformer and then rectified by an electrolytic rectifier, by the use of vacuum tubes manufactured for this purpose.

The use of batteries as a source of plate current potential is limited to very low power sets that are used infrequently, and then only for short intervals. Sufficient capacity in the form of "B" batteries would mean not only a relatively high first cost but also an extremely high maintenance cost. A motor-generator set, while high in first cost, will leave an extremely low maintenance cost and deliver a potential that only varies slightly, due to the commutator ripple. In sections where direct current is used for house lighting, a motor generator set is the only practical and satisfactory source of plate potential. Taking first cost, maintenance cost, convenience and space required into consideration, the best way to obtain the required current potential for the operation of vacuum tube transmitters, is by the use of a step-up transformer and rectifying tubes.

A line of vacuum tube rectifiers is on the market under the name "kenotrons." These tubes have been designed to have the proper operating characteristics to rectify alternating current for the line of transmitting tubes put on the market by the same company.

If radiotron transmitting tubes are used it is only necessary to build or purchase a transformer with a filament heating winding and a plate current winding and by the use of kenotrons for rectifiers. The entire power to operate the transmitting set can be taken from the alternating current house lighting circuit.

It is possible to use an electrolytic rectifier in order to rectify the plate potential after the 110 volt house lighting circuit has been stepped up by means of a transformer. Electrolytic rectifiers are probably the cheapest source of plate potential, but they are sloppy and demand a lot of care and attention.

To operate the standard five-watt transmitting tube, known as radiotron type UV 202, a plate voltage of 350 is required and the plate current per tube is 45-100 of an ampere. The filament requires 2.35 amperes at 7.5 volts. Rectifying tubes known as kenotron type UV 216 are made to be used in conjunction with the five-watt transmitting tubes. The rectifier tubes are so designed that one rectifier will rectify sufficient current at the correct potential to operate one transmitting tube.

Figure "A" shows how a single transformer can be used to furnish all of the necessary plate and filament current for a tube transmitter.

For those who do not wish to be bothered with the trouble and expense of rectifiers, there is a circuit known as the self-rectifying circuit that can be used for radio telegraphy. In using a self-rectifying circuit at least two tubes must be employed. If more power is desired tubes must be added in pairs. The tubes employed are divided into two groups operating on each half of the cycle.

Figure "B" is a diagram of a self-rectifying continuous wave radio telegraph transmitter using five-watt radiotron type UV 202 tubes. The amateur can purchase the parts to make this set as follows:

1. Two five-watt transmitting tubes UV 202, $16.
2. Two-tube sockets UR 542, $2.
3. Power transformer UP 1368, $25.
4. By-pass condensers UC 1014, $4.
5. Grid condensers UC 1014, $2.
6. Grid Leak UP 1719, $1.10.
7. Antenna series condenser UC 1015, $3.40.
8. Antenna ammeter UM 530, $8.
9. Transmitting key UQ 809, $3.
10. 100 radio frequency.

The only parts the builder will have to make himself are the two radio frequency choke coils. The choke coils consist of 90 turns of No. 30 B & S cotton or silk-covered wire wound on a cardboard tube 2 1/4 inches in diameter, the length of the winding on such coil being about two inches.

ALERT RADIO DEALER LEARNS

Not Only Stocks His Shelves With Goods, but Takes Lessons in the Art.

Besides stocking his shelves, the progressive merchant in radio is also employing some of the summer in replenishing his mental supplies of radio information. The taking of courses in the art, either by mail, or through the very convenient form of carefully prepared lessons in a magazine, or from a competent instructor, is highly desirable. The business part of radio is going more and more into the hands of men who have basic knowledge of electricity

START CAMPAIGN FOR RIGHT FOOD

Movement for Better Nourishment for Adults as Well as Children Is Inaugurated.

USE OF MORE MILK FAVORED

Plan to Alleviate Such Common Ailments as Headaches, Constipation, Irritability, Etc.—Some Superior Recipes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A successful campaign for better nourishment of adults as well as children is being conducted in Connecticut, which the United States Department of Agriculture believes could well be extended to other states. The purpose of the campaign is to induce people to add more milk and fibrous material to the diet, with the result that such ailments as headaches, constipation, nervous irritability, and other disorders, due to faulty food habits may become less common. The recipes on this page are being used to introduce these much-needed food substances into the bill of fare of many families.

Cabbage, which is made up largely of fibrous material, is inexpensive and available to both rural and city dwellers. Both milk and the vegetables recommended in these recipes supply the vitamins essential to good health.

Cream Soups. These soups are thickened by cooking butter and flour together. This prevents a separation of the thicker and thinner parts of the soup and is called "binding."

Heat the butter until it bubbles, add the flour and seasonings gradually and stir until well mixed, add the liquid and cook until about the consistency of good cream. Stir constantly. Add the vegetable pulp and liquid and serve hot. If too thick, thin with more milk.

Soda is added to tomatoes in cream of tomato soup to prevent the milk from curdling when it is added to the tomato. One-eighth teaspoonful soda to one cup tomato juice.

Cream Soups.
1 tablespoon flour. 1 cup milk.
1 tablespoon butter. 1 cup strained vegetable pulp. 1/2 teaspoon salt. 1/2 cup cream and juice.

Vegetables Used for Cream Soups.
Tomato. Potato.
Spinach. Carrots.
Peas. Onions.
Beans. Corn.
Asparagus. Cabbage.
Celery. Cauliflower.
Beets.

Prunes and Other Dried Fruits.
Wash well. Soak overnight in water to cover. Boil gently in the same water until tender. Add a little sugar if necessary. Prunes do not usually need sweetening.

Medium White Sauce for Creamed Dishes.

2 tablespoons butter. 1 cup milk.
2 tablespoons flour. 1/4 teaspoon salt.
Make like thin white sauce for cream soup.

Foods Which May Be Creamed.
All vegetables. Macaroni.
Eggs. Meats.
Fish.

CABBAGE SALADS
Cabbage and Fish.

Tuna. Any cold flaked fish.
Salmon.

The proportion of cabbage and fish may be varied. However, 2 cups of cabbage and 1 cup of fish make a palatable combination.

Cabbage and Pineapple.

2 cups shredded cabbage. 1 cup cubed pineapple.

Pear and Cabbage.

2 halves canned or shredded cabbage. 1 pear.

Peanut and Cabbage.

2 cups cabbage. 1 cup peanuts (salted are best).

Peanut, Cabbage and Carrots.

2 cups cabbage. 1/2 cup chopped raw carrots.

Cabbage and Cranberry.

2 cups cabbage. 1/2 cup chopped cranberries.

Cabbage and Chili Sauce Dressing.

2 cups cabbage. 2 tablespoons horse-radish.

Ten-Minute Cabbage.

5 cups finely chopped cabbage. 2 tablespoons butter.

Put cabbage in boiling salted water. Boil hard for ten minutes, drain and season.

Escalloped Cabbage.

2 cups boiled cabbage. 1/2 cup white sauce.

Put creamed cabbage in a baking dish, cover with crumbs and bake.

Creamed Cabbage Au Gratin.

1 cup cooked cabbage. 1/2 cup white sauce.

Put cheese in white sauce, cover with crumbs and bake.

Cream of Cabbage Soup.

4 cups chopped cabbage. 1 teaspoon celery.

2 tablespoons onion. 1 cup chopped celery tops.

Cook until cabbage is transparent. Press through a colander and add one pint thin white sauce.

Thin White Sauce.

2 cups milk. 2 tablespoons flour.

2 tablespoons butter. 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Escalloped Cabbage, Cheese and Rice.

2 cups boiled cabbage. 1/2 cup finely chopped cheese.

2 cups boiled rice. 1/2 cup buttered bread crumbs.

Cover bottom of well greased baking dish with one half of the crumbs.

Arrange layers of cabbage, rice and white sauce. Repeat and cover with remaining crumbs. Bake until heated throughout and crumbs are brown.

GENERAL RULES FOR SELECTION OF BEEF

Choose Cuts According to Cooking Method Desired.

Buy Only Tender Meat for Broiling or Roasting—Tough Pieces Are Useful for Stews, Soups, Etc.—Two Recipes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Two general rules may be laid down for the selection of beef, says the United States Department of Agriculture. First: Buy only the tender cuts when meat is to be prepared by such methods as broiling or roasting. Second: Buy the less tender cuts in all cases for stews, boiled or braised meat, pot roasts, Hamburg steak, meat loaves, and soups. It should be remembered that tender cuts of meat are best not overcooked, also that plenty of time must be allowed for the cooking of the less tender cuts. One exception to this last may be made in the case of ground meat. Finely ground beef may be formed into cakes or into a large roll and these broiled or roasted and served rare just as in the case of tender meat.

The tough tail of a porterhouse steak, so often discarded, may be removed and trimmed, put through the grinder, made into cakes, and these broiled and served along with the tender part of the steak. The tender cuts of beef are the rib roasts, club, porterhouse, and sirloin steaks. The rump and the flank steak also are tender if cut from a prime carcass. All these cuts are best prepared by browning the surface with high heat, then reducing the heat to avoid overcooking the outside. Allow 8 to 20 minutes for a steak, and 15 to 30 minutes for each pound of roast, depending on the thickness of the steak, the size and shape of the roast and whether the meat is preferred rare, medium, or well done.

Soup.

In case a large quantity of soup is needed, it is well to buy freshly trimmed bones, such as the hind shank or hock, the lower fore shank, or any other fresh bone trimmings, but for the average small family it is more satisfactory as well as economical to select cuts having considerable meat along with the bone. The neck, fore shank, shoulder clod, tail, and the lower cuts of the hind shank are all good. If these are well seasoned, put to cook in hot water and allowed to simmer slowly until the meat is tender, the stock will be found to be sufficiently strong for soup and the meat itself will be usable in many ways, such as stew, jellied meat, croquettes, and meat pie.

Swiss Steak.

Any lean beef cut two inches thick can be prepared as Swiss steak. Season on both sides and pound flour into it until the surface is well coated. Brown well in hot suet. Add hot water to about half cover the meat. Cook very slowly in a covered skillet until the meat is tender enough to be cut with a fork. This will require from two to three hours, according to the toughness of the meat. It may be necessary to add a little water during the cooking, but there should be no liquid in the pan when the steak is finished.

Homemade Furniture Polish.

Many requests have recently come to the office of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture for a recipe for a good homemade furniture polish. The following formula, which is an old, well-tried recipe, gives good results:

1 pint linseed oil or 1 pint turpentine. vegetable drying oil. 1 cup vinegar.

Shake well together in the bottle each time before using.

Jacking Up Car in Mud.

When it becomes necessary to jack up a car on soft ground, where there is no support for the tool, take out the floor-board or toe-board and use it for the jack to rest upon.

Delicious Filling.

A delicious filling is made with chopped figs and walnuts, boiling water and sugar, thickened with flour and flavored with lemon juice.

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 24

REVIEW: THE EXILE AND THE RESTORATION

DEVOTIONAL READING—Ps. 66:1-5, 16-20.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord hath done great things for us: whereof we are glad.—Ps. 126:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Selected Stories Retold.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How God Restored His People.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Leaders in the Restoration of Israel.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Lessons From the Exile and Return.

Two methods of review may be employed to advantage.

1. Character Study. Assign the outstanding heroes of the quarter's lessons to members of the class and have them to report. This assignment must be made the week previous, e. g. Ezekiel, the prophet of God; Daniel, the statesman; Ezra, the teacher of God's word, etc.

2. Summary of Contents. This is a good method at all times. It can be adapted to different grades. The following is a suggested method:

Lesson I. Before Ezekiel was commissioned as a prophet he was given a vision of the Almighty. After that he was given an experimental knowledge of God's word—he ate the book—digested and appropriated its contents. An experimental knowledge of God's word is essential.

Lesson II. Because Daniel besought the Lord he was able to make known the king's dream and interpret it. "If any man lack wisdom, let him ask of God (Jas. 1:5).

Lesson III. While Belshazzar and his lords were engaged in drunken revelry a mysterious hand recorded Divine judgment. There is a day coming when men shall be judged. Happy is the man who has fled to Christ, for to such there is no judgment (John 5:24).

Lesson IV. Daniel's sterling worth brought him to the front—he was elevated to be prime minister of the Persian empire. Moved by jealousy certain wicked men plotted his downfall. Because of a flawless record in business they trumped up a charge against him on the ground of his foreign religion. Though the king executed the foolish decree Daniel was delivered and his accusers were cast into the den of lions and destroyed.

Lesson V. Though Israel went into captivity as a punishment of the Lord, in due time He recovered them. God's covenant and judgments are sure. He can move a heathen king to freely fulfill His own good pleasure and purpose.

Lesson VI. In the restoration of the people to their own land, the first thing necessary was the provision of a place for the worship of God. As soon as this work was begun, violent opposition was in evidence. That which God sets out to do shall be completed, though all hell oppose.

Lesson VII. Haman's wicked plot against the Jews was frustrated by Esther's shrewdness and courage. Those who plot against and hate God's covenant people shall be brought to destruction.

Lesson VIII. Through Zerubbabel the people were brought back and established in their own land, but they had gone far away from God. There was now need of a religious leader. Ezra was moved by the Spirit of God to lead them back to fellowship. Because Ezra sought the Lord his way was prospered. Success always comes to those who trust God.

Lesson IX. When Nehemiah heard of the distress of his brethren at Jerusalem, he took the matter to the Lord in prayer. Their sorrow and distress was his sorrow and distress. Is any afflicted, let him pray (Jas. 5:13).

Lesson X. When Nehemiah began the rebuilding of the walls of Jerusalem he encountered violent opposition from without and from within. His faith in God moved him to go straight on with the work and he had the joy of seeing the work completed.

Lesson XI. The method used in bringing back the people to God was the word of God. Because God's word was made plain to the people they repented of their sins and rendered obedience to God.

Lesson XII. Malachi as an aid to Nehemiah in effecting reforms pointed out the sins of the people, viz: Base ingratitude, a corrupt priesthood, mixed marriages, robbing God by withholding tithes, etc., pointing to a day of judgment when righteous retribution would be meted out to the wicked and rewards would be given to the faithful.

Beginning the Day.

If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it and whosoever will lose his life for My sake shall find it.

Sing With Grace in Your Hearts.

Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord.—Colossians 3:16.

SEASONABLE PICKLES AND CONDIMENTS

In most families favorite recipes are handed down from generation to generation. Some of us like variety and would enjoy trying something which has been recommended by others.

Mustard Pickles.—To one gallon of vinegar add one-half cupful of dry mustard, one cupful of salt, two cupfuls of brown sugar. Stir until dissolved and pour over the cucumbers, cover with horseradish leaves and drop in the well-washed pickles as they are picked each day.

Mushroom Catsup.—Wipe carefully but do not wash, fresh mushrooms. Put in layers in a stone jar with salt on each layer. Cover with a cloth and let stand in a warm place twenty-four hours. Wash and strain by pressing through a sieve; to every quart of this liquor and pulp add one ounce of peppercorns and boil thirty minutes very slowly; add one-fourth ounce of whole allspice, one-half ounce of sliced ginger root, one dozen whole cloves, three blades of mace. Cook fifteen minutes, take from the fire, strain again and put into small bottles. Cork and seal with paraffin.

Tomato Soy.—Peel and chop one peck of ripe tomatoes, put over the heat with one-half cupful of whole cloves, one-half cupful of allspice, one cupful of salt, one tablespoonful of pepper, three red peppers, three onions chopped. Cook for one hour, add one quart of cider vinegar; after straining the cooked mixture, reheat and bottle.

Oil Pickles.—Slice one hundred small green cucumbers unpeeled and three medium or six small onions, sprinkle thickly with salt and let stand overnight. In the morning rinse off the salt and place in jars. Cover with the following: Two quarts of vinegar, two-thirds cupful of mustard seed, one tablespoonful each of celery seed and ground pepper, and one cupful of good olive oil. Mix well before pouring over the pickles.

When we cultivate the power of focusing all our force on any single act, we are cultivating also the power of doing our whole duty to the best of our ability. The power to concentrate is the attribute of greatness. Thus we can forget worry, grief, discouragement in happy work.

BREAKFAST BREADS AND CAKES

Even during the fall days there are occasional warm days when the weather is acceptable.

Cooling fruits and sliced tomatoes are delicious with ham or bacon for breakfast, and a hot muffin is not refused.

Sally Lunn.—Take four cupfuls of flour, three eggs, one teaspoonful of the butter and flour with the yeast and two cupfuls of milk. Beat the yolks of the eggs until light, stir in the butter and flour with the yeast dissolved in a little of the milk, and the milk. Beat the whites to a stiff froth and add at the last. Set to rise and when light drop in buttered muffin pans; let rise again and bake in a moderate oven.

Danish Pan Cakes.—Separate the whites and yolks of three eggs, beat well, to one cupful of flour add enough milk to make a thin batter, one-half teaspoonful of soda, a teaspoonful of vinegar and the eggs, with salt to taste. Fry as usual.

Blue Grass Waffles.—Take two cupfuls of thick sour cream, two cupfuls of flour, three eggs well beaten, one-half teaspoonful of soda sifted with the flour, mix and fold in the whites well beaten, the yolks beaten having been added to the cream. Bake a golden brown on hot waffle irons.

Newport Dried Beef.—Prepare a cream sauce, adding the dried beef and an egg; when well-cooked add one-half cupful of stewed strained tomatoes and a tablespoonful of grated cheese just before taking from the fire. Heat thoroughly and serve at once on buttered toast.

Raised Fruit Doughnuts.—Cream together one-fourth of a cupful of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of butter. Dissolve one-half of a yeast cake in one cupful of milk that has been scalded and cooled. Add one-half teaspoonful of salt and combine, adding two cupfuls of flour. Let rise until double its bulk, then add one-half cupful of sugar, a half teaspoonful of cinnamon, a grating of nutmeg, one-half cupful currants and the same of raisins with a little citron; add a pinch of allspice and two scant cupfuls of flour. Add one beaten egg, knead thoroughly and let rise until light. Cut or tear off pieces of dough the size of an egg, drop into smoking hot fat and when brown drain on brown paper. Roll in sugar when cool.

CHAPTER V—Continued.

But at the table that noon Aunt Jane read it to Father out loud. So that's how I came to know just what was in it. She started first to hand it over to him to read; but as he put out his hand to take it I guess he saw the handwriting, for he drew back quickly, looking red and queer.

"From Mrs. Anderson to you?" he asked. And when Aunt Jane nodded her head he sat still farther back in his chair and said, with a little wave of his hand, "I never care to read—other people's letters."

Aunt Jane said, "Stuff and nonsense, Charles, don't be silly!" But she pulled back the letter and read it—after giving a kind of an uneasy glance in my direction.

Then Aunt Jane cleared her throat and spoke.

"You will not let her go, of course, Charles; but naturally I had to read the letter to you. I will write to Mrs. Anderson tonight."

Father looked up then.

"Yes," he said quietly; "and you may tell her, please, that Mary will go."

"Charles!"

Aunt Jane said that. But I—I almost ran around the table and hugged him. (Oh, how I wish he was the kind of a father you could do that to!)

"Charles!" said Aunt Jane again. "Surely you aren't going to give in so tamely as this to that child and her mother!"

"I'm not giving in at all, Jane," said Father, very quietly again. "I am consulting my own wishes in the matter. I prefer to have her go."

I most cried out then. Some way, it hurt to have him say it like that, right out—that he wanted me to go. You see, I'd begun to think he was getting so he didn't mind so very much having me here. All the last two weeks he'd been different, really different. But more of that anon. I'll go on with what happened at the table. And, as I said, I don't need to have him speak like that. And I can remember now just how the lump came right up in my throat.

Then Aunt Jane spoke, stiff and dignified.

"Oh, very well, of course, if you put it that way. I can quite well understand that you would want her to go—for your sake. But I thought that, under the circumstances, you would manage somehow to put up with the noise and—"

"Jane!" Just like that he interrupted, and he thundered, too, so that Aunt Jane actually jumped. And I guess I did, too. He had sprung to his feet. "Jane, let us close this matter once for all. I am not letting the child go for my sake. I am letting her go for her own. So far as I am concerned, if I consulted no one's wishes but my own, I should—keep her here always."

With that he turned and strode from the room, leaving Aunt Jane and me just staring after him.

But only for a minute did I stare. It came to me then what he had said—that he would like to keep me here always. For I had heard it, even if he had said the last word very low, and in a queer, indistinct voice. I was sure I had heard it, and I suddenly realized what it meant. So I ran after him; and that time, if I had found him, I think I would have hugged him. But I didn't find him. He must have gone quite away from the house. He wasn't even out to the observatory. I went out to see.

The next day he was more as he has been since we had that talk in the parlor. And he has been different since then; you know. He really has. He has talked quite a lot with me, as I have said, and I think he's been trying, part of the time, to find something I'll be interested in. Honestly, I think he's been trying to make up for Carrie Heywood and Stella Mayhew and Charlie Smith and Mr. Livingstone. I think that's why he took me to walk that day in the woods, and why he took me out to the observatory to see the stars quite a number of times. Twice he's asked me to play to him, and once he asked me if Mary wasn't about ready to dress up in Marie's clothes again. But he was joking then, I knew, for Aunt Jane was right there in the house. Besides, I saw the twinkle in his eyes that I've seen there once or twice before. I just love that twinkle in Father's eyes!

But that hasn't come any since Mother's letter to Aunt Jane arrived. He's been the same in one way, yet different in another. Honestly, if it didn't seem too wildly absurd for anything, I should say he was actually sorry to have me go. But, of course, that isn't possible. Oh, yes, I know he said that day at the dinner table that he should like to keep me always. But I don't think he really meant it. He hasn't acted a mite like that since, and

I guess he said it just to hush up Aunt Jane, and make her stop arguing the matter.

Anyway, I'm going tomorrow. And I'm so excited I can hardly breathe.

CHAPTER VI.

When I Am Both Together.

BOSTON AGAIN.

Well, I came last night. Mother and Grandfather and Aunt Hattie and Baby Lester all met me at the station. And, my! wasn't I glad to see them? Well, I just guess I was!

I was specially glad on account of having such a dreadful time with Father that morning. I mean, I was feeling specially lonesome and homesick, and not-belonging-anywhere-like.

He never even spoke at the breakfast-table. (He wasn't there hardly long enough to speak, anyway, and he never ate a thing, only his coffee—I mean he drank it.) Then he pushed his chair back from the table and stalked out of the room.

He went to the station with me; but he didn't talk there much, only to ask if I was sure I hadn't forgotten anything, and was I warmly clad. Warmly clad, indeed! And there it was still August, and hot as it could be! But that only goes to show how absent-minded he was, and how little he was really thinking of me!

Oh, I did so hope he wouldn't go down to the junction. It's so hard to be taken care of "because it's my duty, you know!" But he went. I told him he needn't, when he was getting on the train with me. I told him I just knew I could do it beautifully all by myself, almost-a-young lady like me. But he only put his lips together hard.

There Was Company That Evening.
The Violinist.

and said, cold, like ice: "Are you then so eager to be rid of me?" Just as if I was the one that was eager to get rid of somebody!

Well, as I said, he went. But he wasn't much better on the train than he had been in the station. He was as nervous and fidgety as a witch, and he acted as if he did so wish it would be over, and over quick. But at the junction—at the junction a funny thing happened. He put me on the train, just as Mother had done, and spoke to the conductor. (How I hated to have him do that! Why, I'm six whole months older, 'most, than I was when I went up there!) And then, when he'd put me in my seat (Father, I mean; not the conductor), all of a sudden he leaned over and kissed me; kissed me—Father! Then, before I could speak, or even look at him, he was gone; and I didn't see him again, though it must have been five whole minutes before that train went.

I had a nice trip down to Boston, though nothing much happened. This conductor was not near so nice and polite as the one I had coming up; and there wasn't any lady with a baby to play with, nor any nice young gentleman to loan me magazines or buy candy for me. But it wasn't a very long ride from the junction to Boston, anyway. So I didn't mind. Besides, I knew I had Mother waiting for me.

And wasn't I glad to get there? Well, I just guess I was! And they acted as if they were glad to see me—Mother, Grandfather, Aunt Hattie, and even Baby Lester. He knew me, and remembered me. He'd grown a lot, too. And they said I had, and that I looked very nice. (I forgot to say that, of course, I had put on the Marie clothes to come home in—though, I honestly think Aunt Jane wanted to send me home in Mary's blue gingham and calfskin shoes. As if I'd have appeared in Boston in that rig!)

My, but it was good to get into an automobile again and just go! And it was so good to have folks around you dressed in something besides don't-care black alpaca and stiff collars. And I said so. And Mother seemed so pleased.

"You did want to come back to me, darling, didn't you?" she cried, giving me a little hug. And she looked so happy when I told her all over again how good it seemed to be Marie again, and have her and Boston, and automobiles, and pretty dresses and folks and noise again.

She didn't say anything about Father then; but later, when we were up in my pretty room alone, and I was taking off my things, she made me tell her that Father hadn't won my love away from her, and that I didn't love him better than I did her; and that I wouldn't rather stay with him than with her.

And she asked was he lonesome; and I told her no, I didn't think so; and that, anyway, he could have all the ladies' company he wanted by just being around when they called. And when she asked what I meant, I told her about Mrs. Darling, and the rest, and how they came evenings and Sundays, and how Father didn't like them, but would flee to the observatory. And she laughed and looked funny, for a minute. But right away she changed and looked very sober, with the kind of expression she has when she stands up in church and says the Apostles' Creed on Sunday; only this time she said she was very sorry, she was sure; that she hoped my father would find some estimable woman who would make a good home for him.

Then the dinner-gong sounded, and she didn't say any more.

There was company that evening. The violinist. He brought his violin, and he and Mother played a whole hour together. He's awfully handsome. I think he's lovely. Oh, I do so hope he's the one! Anyhow, I hope there's some one. I don't want this novel to all fizzle out without there being any one to make it a love story! Besides, as I said before, I'm particularly anxious that Mother shall find somebody to marry her, so she'll stop being divorced, anyway.

A MONTH LATER

Yes, I know it's been ages since I've written here in this book; but there just hasn't been a minute's time.

First, of course, school began, and I had to attend to that. And, of course, I had to tell the girls all about Andersonville—except the parts I didn't want to tell, about Stella Mayhew, and my coming out of school. I didn't tell that. And right here let me say how glad I was to get back to this school—a real school—so different from that one up in Andersonville! For that matter, everything's different here from what it is in Andersonville. I'd so much rather be Marie than Mary. I know I won't ever be Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde here. I'll be the good one all the time.

Mother's a dear. And she's so happy! And, by the way, I think it is the violinist. He's here a lot, and she's out with him to concerts and plays, and riding in his automobile. And she always puts on her prettiest dresses, and she's very particular about her shoes, and her hats, that they're becoming, and all that. Oh, I'm so excited! And I'm having such a good time watching them! Oh, I don't mean watching them in a disagreeable way, so that they see it; and, of course, I have to get all I can—for the book, you know; and, of course, if I just happen to be in the window-seat corner in the library and hear things accidentally, why, that's all right.

And I have heard things.

He says her eyes are lovely. He likes her best in blue. He's very lonely, and he never found a woman before who really understood him. He thinks her soul and his are tuned to the same string. (Oh, dear! That sounds funny and horrid, and not at all the way it did when he said it. It was beautiful then. But—well, that is what it meant, anyway.)

She told him she was lonely, too, and that she was very glad to have him for a friend; and he said he prized her friendship above everything else in the world. And he looks at her, and follows her around the room with his eyes; and she blushes up real pink and pretty lots of times when he comes into the room.

Now, if that isn't making love to each other, I don't know what is. I'm sure he's going to propose. Oh, I'm so excited!

I haven't heard from Father. Now just my writing that down that way shows that I expected to hear from him, though I don't really see why I should, either. Of course, he never has written to me; and, of course, I understand that I'm nothing but his daughter by order of the court. But, some way, I did think maybe he'd write me just a little bit of a note in answer to mine—my bread-and-butter letter, I mean; for, of course, Mother had me write that to him as soon as I got here.

But he hasn't. I wonder how he's getting along, and if he misses me any. But, of course, he doesn't do that. If I was a star, now—!

Mr. Dulverton was feeling rather pleased with himself.

"So you heard me make my speech last night, Maria."

"Yes," answered his wife. "I was up in the gallery."

"Well, you haven't told me what you thought of it," said Henry, expecting to be highly praised.

"Oh, it reminded me so much of your courting me, Henry?"

"Really? How was that?"

"Why, Henry, I thought you would never come to the point."

Youthful Fijian Proved Anew That Necessity Is the Fertile Mother of Invention.

A traveler from Fiji in the old days reports that at times in the past when the game was first introduced there the Fijians used to get waves of cricket madness, and in some outlying villages—where it was not so readily quelled by law—a match would be kept up for weeks, on end. Incidentally, they wore their pads strapped on their naked, bootless legs with a very ludicrous effect. But evidently the Fijians have no sense of the ludicrous, for our traveler further reports: "Another distinguishing mark that rather amused me once upon country was when my house boy, Esau, came in one day with his hair cut away from one side of his head, looking like a somewhat weird 'parting' for the remainder stood up as usual like a bass broom with bristles five inches long. I asked him what on earth he had been doing and he replied: 'Sir, I am now a member of the Lomaloma "A" team, and we have agreed to cut our hair like this, as the store cannot get 11 sashes all the same color.'—London TH-BITS.

Landon the Explorer.

Henry Savage Landon has a splendid record as an explorer. He was the first known white man to reach both sources of the Brahmaputra river of India and established their exact positions in Tibet. His exploration tours in the Himalayas also yielded a vast store of information. He later spent a whole year cruising among and studying the Philippine Islands.

With a single partner, Mr. Landon traveled 3,800 miles on a pack saddle through Korea. Later he turned his attention to Africa spending several years there and then again changing his scene of action to South America where he traveled almost continuously until 1914.

AT LEAST GUILTY OF LYING

Truly Clergyman Had Refrained From Blasphemy, but He Had Sinned in Another Direction.

A clergyman who years ago settled in Massachusetts once reproved a workman for swearing while he was plowing a new field.

"Swear!" said the man. "I guess you'd swear!"

Whereupon the preacher took the plow and hurried after it, indignantly denying the charge. Then, as the field became more impassable, he began panting:

"I never saw the like! I never saw the like!" When he had gone once round the field he stopped, breathless, and added:

"There, you see I didn't find it necessary to swear."

"No," said the other, "but you've told more'n 50 lies. You said you never did see the like, and you saw it all the time I was plowin'."

TINLEY PARK

Henry Bormet was married to Miss Breyer of Lester Prairie, Minn., a week ago and following is an account of the wedding given by The Lester Prairie News:

One of the pretty weddings of the year took place last Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, in St. Peter's Lutheran church, when Miss Mildgard Breyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Breyer, became the bride of Henry Bormet of Tinley Park, Ill., Rev. Walter Baunhoefner officiating.

The bride was gowned in a beautiful white satin crepe and carried a bouquet of white roses and lily-of-the-valley.

The bride was attended by her sister, Lillian Breyer, who wore a gown of green canton crepe and carried a bouquet of pink roses; her cousin, Ella Breyer, in a gown of lavender canton crepe, carrying a bouquet of pink roses; the groom's cousin, Marie Schilling, in a gown of salmon colored canton crepe, who carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The groom, in a suit of blue serge, had as his attendants his chum, William Hasenpflug; Fred Breyer, a brother of the bride, and Elmer Zebell, a cousin of the bride. The groom's attendants all wore suits of blue serge.

The bride is one of Bergen township's most popular young ladies.

The groom is a popular young farmer from Tinley Park, Ill.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. The bride received many beautiful presents.

Mr. and Mrs. Bormet will make their home on Mr. Bormet's farm, one mile from Tinley Park.

The "News" joins with the young couple's many friends in wishing them much joy. The young couple left Tuesday for their home at Tinley Park.

The out-of-town guests attending were: Miss Julia Friedrich of Glenwood; the Holtz family and the Krant family of Belle Plaine; Mr. Ewald and Mr. and Mrs. Waldemar Breyer of Hutchinson; the Edward Schmalz family and the Joe Schaumburg family of Buffalo Lake; the Henry Kuhlmann family of Howard Lake; John G. Bormet, Mokena; Mrs. William Greve, Mrs. Fred Frankenholtz, Arthur Dini, Tinley Park, Ill.—Lester Prairie (Minn.) News.

Miss Helen Kremer, niece of Mrs. Herman Stoekman, who recently played for the KYW Radio station, Chicago, has been invited to play again, the date to be announced later.

FRANKFORT

A goodly number of students from Frankfort, approximately 15 pupils, are going to Joliet high school this year. Mr. Floyd Saulman, Miss Alma Bormet, Clarence Waldvogel, Mr. Kingsley Owen and Miss Sarah Balchowsky have enrolled this year. School opened Sept. 17th. The new addition to the high school is not fully completed, although classes are held in it.

The men of the Methodist Episcopal church held a social Friday, Sept. 15th. Rev. Putnam spoke. The party was in charge of the men only.

NEW LENNOX

The Elysium, the now well known New Lenox dance hall, has at last been moved onto the new foundation on the former Kennedy lot. Things are being played in shape so that the dancing season will be opened soon. This hall has been a very popular one the past year, and no doubt will be still more so after being fully completed on its new location.

Miss Myrtle Werner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Werner, and Ralph Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Willard Bush, were quietly married, at the home of the bride, on Saturday evening, Sept. 16th, at 8 p. m.

Rev. A. L. Brown of the Marley Baptist church performed the ceremony, which was witnessed by the families of the contracting parties. The double ring ceremony was used. The bride was attended by Miss Esther Schultz of Joliet as bridesmaid, and the groom was attended by Howard Werner, brother of the bride.

The bride was attired in grey canton crepe and wore a corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses. The bridesmaid was gowned in blueorgette and wore a corsage bouquet of pink roses.

Following the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served, covers being laid for fifteen guests. The dining room was prettily decorated in yellow and white. A huge bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums formed the center piece of the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Bush have gone to light housekeeping on Cass street, Joliet. The bride was employed at the Silver Cross hospital for a number of years.

Innocent Smyrna Refugees in Pitiful Condition Without Food or Homes—All Non-Moslems in Danger of Extermination

Immediate action on the part of every one of us is necessary so as to save the victims of this most recent Turkish outrage. The Smyrna disaster is the most serious and terrifying that has occurred since the World war. Every hour counts.

Urgent cables plead for immediate help—"Tremendous relief problem calls for decisive action. Starvation taking heavy death toll. Refugees' plight deplorable. Obligated abandon homes. Forced march the hundred miles in broiling sun. Survivors sick, starving, exhausted. Seven hundred thousand facing starvation."

Near East Relief stands ready to transmit overseas any funds contributed for Smyrna emergency relief. Everything possible to relieve the suffering of these stricken refugees is being done with the supplies available, but there is already an appalling shortage of food. What is wasted here daily will feed them.

Give, that innocent women and children may be saved. Contributions sent to this newspaper will be acknowledged through its columns. Or, send your contributions direct to George M. Reynolds, Treasurer, Near East Relief, 19 South La Salle Street, Chicago.

Chairman, Illinois Committee, Near East Relief.

The Rural Home

By Rev. Neumeier

The home is the greatest of all social institutions. "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home." If this become untrue in the life of a nation, that nation has lost its foundation. The home formerly was the economic, as well as the social center, but the character and function of the home changed. Home life in the city is gradually breaking down. In many instances the home, in our large cities, is merely a place to sleep and probably eat. Home life in the city is one of the most urgent and difficult problems of modern life. The typical American family is a broken family with some member of the family away from home. The family is central to many current social problems. Many phases of social reform depends upon the efficiency of the family. The farm home is not only a social necessity, but an economic one, for the home is needed to run the farm.

In the last analysis, the welfare of the Nation depends upon whether the average home and family represents the kind of citizenship best fitted for the life of the Nation. Good homes insure the life of a Nation, but broken and inefficient homes lead to its destruction. Roosevelt once said, "Questions like the tariff and currency are literally of no consequence compared with the vital question of having the unit of our social life, the home, preserved. We will have lost our own National Soul if we do not have the question of the relations of the family put on a proper basis."

The character of the home life of the country has had a tremendous influence upon our national life. Close association in the home tends to produce democracy of relationship and loyalty to the small group. The spirit of loyalty and democracy are essential qualities for the establishment and maintenance of a great democracy. There is no organization equal to the family in developing loyalty. On the whole, rural parents have trained their children to have respect for authority and obedience to that authority. This has been a valuable asset to the Nation.

The women and children, as well as the men, have a share in the work. The family life in the country is a cooperative, each member having a definite task, but all working together. The country woman has the highest privilege and duty of home-making. Few people on earth are as busy as the farmer's wife. Many even work under difficult circumstances, for few country homes have modern conveniences. The introduction of more social life, more modern conveniences and less work would be a great help to the farm women. Work and learning how to work is a valuable training which farm boys and girls receive. They have a variety of tasks and experiences which is little appreciated, but which produces industrious citizens.

The farm should be made attractive, but nothing on the farm should be made more attractive than the farm home, which should be the beauty spot. The problem of rural dwellings has not been given proper attention. Rural dwellings should be beautiful and attractive, but not necessarily large. Many farm houses are excessively large, requiring much work and expense to keep them in good condition. Houses should be arranged for convenience, sanitation and comfort.

To provide a good home, a place where the children are carefully

MOKENA

Misses Olive Geuther and Edna Schmuhl have been attending the Evangelical Sunday school convention held at Kankakee this week. They represented the Sunday school of the local St. John Evangelical church.

The members of the former Mokena Camp Fire Girls held a post-nuptial China and glass shower at the home of Mrs. Frank Vally, Tuesday night, in honor of Mrs. Ralph Bush, formerly Miss Myrtle Werner. The rooms were prettily decorated in yellow and white, the bride's colors. Games, contests, etc., were the diversion of the evening. Ice cream and cake was served. Mrs. Bush received many pretty gifts.

The M. E. Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. Oscar Klose, last Thursday. Mrs. Charles Liess assisting. The annual election of officers was held, as follows:

President, Mrs. M. F. Hall.
Vice-President, Mrs. Fred Hunter.

Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. Hugh Deadmore.

Plans were further discussed for the coming bazaar, to be held Nov. 8th, at the Hatch hall. Mrs. Thomas Clyde of Joliet was a visiting guest at this meeting.

Miss Amelia Duncan, who has been confined to bed for some time with an attack of lumbago, is slightly improved.

A large company of friends and neighbors sprung a surprise party on Fred Hentsch, the genial Mokena garage man, in honor of his birthday anniversary, Friday night. Bunco was the chief diversion of the evening, five tables playing. Prizes were won as follows: Men—George Ascherbrenner, first; Mr. Eich, second; Rev. W. J. Kemnitz, third. Ladies—Miss Mable Schiek, first; Mrs. Fred Steinhagen, second; Miss Clara Rosener, third.

The Mokena Home Improvement Club will meet with Mrs. Albert Maue, Thursday, Sept. 28 at 2 p. m.

The High School class in civics this year is to study real live problems as well as book theories. Next Friday afternoon they will have a debate in the class on the subject

"Resolved that the village of Mokena should provide and operate a moving picture show."

Philip Hacker is the leader of the affirmative. He will be assisted by Francis Nelson, Walter Groth, Alvin Soensen, Robt. Maue, Hazel Cudler and Madeline Farrer. The leader of the negative is Andrew Ascherbrenner and his assistants will be Robert Geuther, Walter Yunker, Harold Cudler, Donald Maue, Annie Szilagyi and Edna Warning.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hacker who recently returned from a trip to California and other Pacific coast points, report a big fruit crop in that part of the country and big watermelons are selling at 5 cents.

Mr. and Mrs. George Heim and son, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Heintz, daughter Francis and family of Blue Island visited with their aunt Mrs. John Semmler, Sunday.

Wall Papers For Dormer-Window Rooms

They Must Be Given An Intimate and Quaint Appearance, For Never Can The Decorations Make For Elegance.

EFFECTIVE USE OF A FRANK STRIPE ON A SLOPING WALL

MANY of the new suburban houses that are being built in the so-called Dutch Colonial style as well as numbers of old houses have on the second or third floor rooms with unevenly slanting ceilings made by the dormer windows or the pitch of the roof. Usually these are bedrooms but sometimes they are sitting, sewing, or children's play rooms. They present to the decorator a special problem in wall-paper selection.

It is necessary first in making a choice for such a room to respect the character of the room. Necessarily, whatever the use to which it is to be put, it will be informal. It cannot with its sloping walls and gabled angles make any pretensions to elegance. It will have, moreover, a rather intimate, quaint character. By stressing this aspect in this wall-paper selection both room and paper will gain their best effect.

The papers, for these rooms are those with a very continuous all over pattern, one that does not have any tendency to break up into stripes in any direction. To avoid unexpected stripes a drop repeat paper is particularly good. The all over floral paper, of course, immediately suggests itself, for it has the continuity, can readily be small enough in scale, and has an old-fashioned feeling. Floral papers with birds had better be eschewed for the figure might very well occur at some of the many angles of such a room and it would indeed be distressing to see his back bent to fit them. Nor would any floral paper on which the plant seems to grow up straight such as some of the hollyhock and grape designs be good for the adaptation to the various angles might make them look as if a bad wind had swept through the garden.

Strangely enough, while any hint of a stripe in an all over design is unpleasant on a sloping wall a frank stripe can be used satisfactorily as the illustration shows. Being very simple the changes in angles do not create any feeling of confusion as they would with a floral stripe, and the paper has the advantage of increasing the apparent height of the wall, decreasing any feeling of oppressiveness from the low ceiling.

Variations on the plain stripe that could be used with complete appropriateness are the small dotted and beaded stripes simulating old-fashioned calico patterns. They have a simplicity and hominess that are particularly appealing in these humble-looking little rooms.

The ceiling should be absolutely plain to contrast decisively with the walls.

Washington and Lafayette, Distinguished Paper Hangers

Father and mother, with the visitor and the children do not now undertake to hang the wall paper as in the old days. But take a quotation from Miss Sarghoun's beautiful book, "Old Time Wall Papers," where she tells the story of the hanging of the wall paper at Mt. Vernon in the following words: "The paper hanger was not so much a necessity in the old days as now. The family often joined in the task of making the paste, cutting the paper and placing it on the walls. This was not beneath the dignity of George Washington, who with the assistance of Lafayette, hung on the walls of Mt. Vernon paper which he had purchased abroad."

The story goes that the good Martha lamented in the presence of Lafayette that she would be unable to get the paper hung in the banquet room in time for the morrow's ball in honor of the young marquis. There were no men to be found for such work.

Lafayette at once pointed out to Mistress Washington that she had three able-bodied men at her service, Gen. Washington, Lafayette himself and his aid-de-camp. Whereupon the company fell merrily to work and the paper was hung in time for the ball.

If you want what you want when you want it—in the printing line—WE HAVE IT!

Putting it off today won't get it done tomorrow. An advertisement in this paper today will bring business tomorrow.

News Nuggets From Illinois

In pursuance of resolutions passed by the Illinois Press association, the University of Illinois is expanding its instruction in journalism to provide a four years' course, which will lead to the degree of bachelor of arts. The course will open the coming semester.

Hog cholera in a virulent form has broken out in Winslow, Buckeye, West Point and other townships of Stephenson county, and some farmers have lost hundreds of porkers. Vaccination is being resorted to in an effort to stay the progress of the epidemic.

Edward A. Glad, past commander of Humboldt Park commandery, Chicago, was unanimously elected grand warden of the Knights Templar of Illinois at a meeting in Peoria. Other officers elected are: William H. Jennings of Streator, grand recorder, and S. O. Spring of Chicago, re-elected grand treasurer.

Thousands of Red Men, members of the Great Council of Illinois, are expected to attend the twenty-fifth camp fire of the Improved Order of Red Men which will convene in the senate chamber of the state capitol October 3. A special session of the council is scheduled to be held October 2 to confer the past sachen's degree.

It has been decided to add a class in journalism to the curriculum of the Decatur high school. There has been a demand for several years among students for such a course. It will consist of studies in composition of newspapers from the writer's standpoint, newspaper English and preparation of copy. The school will publish a weekly paper.

The mine mule gradually is disappearing from coal mining in southern Illinois. The modern mine finds use for only one mule, that for the distribution of powder after the miners have been hoisted to the surface. This mule is lowered to the bottom of the shaft, but brought back up after completing its work, and is cared for in a stable above ground. Electrical power is used almost exclusively for hauling coal carts under ground.

Cider season is now on in Egypt. Perhaps no section of Illinois makes and consumes more cider than does Carbondale and its surrounding territory. The cider makers of this farm have its little cider machine and every home its sweet cider jug. A great abundance of apples, especially what are termed "seconds," this year, makes a veritable flood of the sweet amber fluid certain. It is said. Everyone seems to be making cider. What is not used for drinking purposes will be used as vinegar.

That several hundreds, perhaps thousands, of gallons, of bonded whiskey was stolen from the Corning distillery at Peoria by thieves working a syphon system through 250 feet of rubber hose is the belief of police and distillery officials investigating recent losses. The thieves are believed to have syphoned barrel after barrel of liquor and carried their loot away on a truck. Discovery of the robbery was made when Superintendent Taylor of the distillery found a hose running to a window. Several empty barrels were found where the hose terminated outside.

The condition of spring wheat in Illinois on September 1 was estimated to be 66 per cent compared with the average of 70 per cent, indicating a crop of 2,629,000 bushels compared with 2,596,000 bushels last year, according to the monthly crop report of the Illinois Co-operative Crop Reporting service. The report shows that all farm work is well advanced except plowing, which is backward due to the unfavorable dry soil conditions. The Illinois corn crop showed a slump of slightly more than 4,000,000 bushels during August due to the prolonged drought with scattered days of excessive heat.

The volume of employment in the industries of Illinois improved slightly during August, according to signed reports received by the general advisory board of the Illinois Department of Labor from 1,282 employers of the state. Despite the depressing effects of railroad strikes, the shortage and high price of fuel, hot weather, and vacations, there was an actual gain in the number of workers employed amounting to one per cent. In the manufacturing industries the gain in employment for 1,048 employers employing one-third of all wage earners in manufacturing industries was 1.6 per cent, and this change gave jobs to 3,448 more workers than found employment in July.

Women are legally competent to serve as jurors in Illinois. Judge Wolfe, in Circuit court at Quincy, told the board of supervisors when asked for his opinion. He said that it was necessary to choose the jury list from 10 per cent of all voters, including women, but the law made no provision for them as jurors.

The number of hogs on Illinois farms for fattening is estimated to be 12 per cent greater than last year. The state wool crop is estimated to be 2 per cent less than was clipped in 1921.

Three days after she reached the age she forecast for herself—one hundred—Mrs. Jane Warner died at Peoria. Only her determination to reach one hundred is believed by attendants to have kept her alive for her birthday. Mrs. Warner was born in Mystic, Conn., and came West when a girl.

A consignment of 2,000,000 small fry, from the state fish hatchery in Lake county, has been placed in the Vermilion river. This distribution should greatly improve hook and line fishing at Streator during the next few years. Due to the activities of seiners and dynamiters, the pastime has been greatly damaged of late years.

That the Southern Illinois Coal company expected trouble at Herrin from the striking miners, and to meet such an eventuality, purchased firearms in Chicago, was a point the 15 applicants for compensation before the Illinois industrial commission attempted to prove at hearings held in Chicago.

Ogle is the latest northern Illinois county to contract the "oil fever." Following the discovery of seepages in several townships, a syndicate has leased 10,000 acres and will start drilling as soon as machinery can be obtained. The contracts made with the land owners are for a yearly payment of $2 per acre and the usual one-eighth royalty on any oil found.

Coal mines in the Springfield district are working only part time despite the fact that almost a month has passed since the settlement of the coal strike. "Our mines work whenever we get coal cars," a operator stated. "But some of the mines are beginning to shut down for two and three days each week because of car shortage."

John A. Singer, partner in the defunct George Legg Produce company of Decatur, has been adjudged a bankrupt. He scheduled liabilities of $141,000 and assets of $78,000. Numerous creditors in Pana, Raymond, Springfield, Litchfield, Nokomis, Shelbyville and Westervelt, where branch houses of the Legg company were in operation, are affected.

The Illinois apple crop is estimated to be 9,438,000 bushels compared with 2,381,000 bushels last year and the average of 5,273,000 bushels. The production of peaches is estimated to be 1,100,000 bushels compared with 76,000 bushels last year and the average of 488,000 bushels. The Illinois pear crop is estimated to be 546,000 bushels compared with 100,000 bushels last year and 503,000 bushels in 1920.

Business on the St. Louis division of the Illinois Central railroad through Carbondale broke a record a few days ago. On that day 2,073 cars passed over the division, which is said by officials of the road to be the best in the history of the Illinois Central. The best previous record occurred on a day during the World war. On April 29, 1918, 2,004 cars passed through. This was the crest of the war.

Five thousand members of the Knights of Pythias of Illinois and auxiliary organizations are expected to attend the fifty-third annual convention of the domain of Illinois to open in Decatur Tuesday, September 26, and continue three days. The second day, September 27, is to be known as "Dokey" day and the annual parade with numerous bands will be the feature. This event is devoted to the interests of the dramatic order, Knights of Khorassan.

American Legion comrades of Earl J. Wendel, Chicago, University of Illinois senior and war veteran, slain by a Watseka deputy sheriff, joined the young man's parents in a fight to have the slayer tried for murder. At a meeting of the executive committee of Trowel post, of which Wendel was a member, it was voted to ask state national department commanders of the Legion to help prosecute Deputy Sheriff E. L. Heikes, son of Sheriff George P. Heikes of Iroquois county.

A tax commission appointed by Mayor Hallstrom of Rockford is believed by Rockford officials to be the only one of its kind in the state. Its purpose is, in the words of the mayor, "to organize such a storm of public sentiment that the time-honored system of taxation in this community will be blasted to the winds." Mayor Hallstrom charges that the present taxing system is "saturated with glaring errors, intentional or otherwise." The commission consists of five prominent citizens and has no legal standing.

Many candidates are out for the position of commander of the American Legion, department of Illinois, to succeed W. R. MacCauley, who declines to accept renomination at the annual convention in Rock Island on September 25 and 26. There are now 742 posts in this state and all will be represented at the meeting by one or more members. It is hoped that at least 8,000 uniformed men will march in the annual parade, which will be reviewed by Hanford MacNider, national commander, and other officials. Twenty bands and bugle and drum corps will compete for three prizes, $500, $300 and $250.

Because its public golf course is said to resemble a course in New York city, Bloomington's new park has been given the name of "Highland Park."

According to Coroner Peter M. Hoffman of Cook county 25 persons have been killed this month by automobiles, and if the present rate continues, September will show a greater toll of death by automobiles than last month, when 76 persons died, the largest number for any month in the history of the county.

American Built Monorail Is a Success

A monorail system that is proving fully as practical as the celebrated foreign ones has been devised by the American Magnesium company to run between its mine in southern California and the nearest railroad, 32 miles away. Using a single track, mounted high on a wooden framework, and with balancing rollers on either side, the monorail track can be laid at trifling expense over any sort of country. In tests, the little engine carried as many as twenty people without a balk.

SAYS CHRIST SAVED HIM

Dr. Samuel G. Benson, who is now at the I. M. C. A. in Brussels for the purpose of holding a votive healing mission, and is organizing a world movement for the healing of sickness by prayer. He is the author of a war book entitled "Back From Hell," the result of his experiences as a relief worker in Belgium. Having resigned his parish in the United States, Doctor Benson went to Belgium as a relief worker in 1915. He was seized by the Germans because of his assistance to Belgian refugees. On Easter Wednesday, 1915, at 11:15 a. m., he was to be shot in the Place Royale as a spy; but as the German officer was starting to blindfold his eyes, Christ—Doctor Benson says—suddenly stood between them, miraculously saving his life. He was expelled from the country by the Germans before sundown.

CENTURY NOTHING TO HER

Mrs. Hannah Eldred of Baldwin, L. I., was ironing a shirt at 7 o'clock the other night and singing—she always sings when she works—when a hundred or so descendants and other relatives came in and reminded her that it was her hundredth birthday. Mrs. Eldred reads without glasses and is astonishingly vigorous for her 115 pounds. The photographer said, in an aside to one of the daughters: "Can she walk unaided?" Mrs. Eldred overheard and answered him by dancing a jig. Then, just to prove her pep, she went out into the yard, chopped wood, hung up a washing on the line, pushed a wheelbarrow around, and then climbed a ladder.

ENERGY IS CAPITAL

LAKE cannot turn a turbine, though it contains more water than a cataract.

All the knowledge you can accumulate in a lifetime will do you no good unless it can be translated into energy.

The difference between doers and wishers in this life is a difference of energy.

The wishers want things. The doers get them. It is hard work getting them, but energy is the force that can accomplish hard work.

The reason you see so many men succeed whom you know to be no better fitted mentally than failures of your acquaintance is because the successful men are energetic.

Energy is the driving force behind everything that is done.

All of us have some of it, or we could not live.

Those who have a great deal usually get along, unless they constantly misdirect it.

There are, of course, energetic people who never get very far. But even they get farther than they would if they were content to sit still.

If the maxim, "Everything comes to him who waits," were amended to read "Nothing comes to him who waits" it would be true.

As it stands it is one of the most misleading and dangerous falsehoods in existence.

Your energy is your capital. Use it wisely and economically and it will pay you an almost usurious rate of interest.

Half use it, or waste it on things that are of no value, and you will just about make a living, which is a thing no man of ambition wants to do.

Education teaches us to use our energy profitably. An educated man can, or should, get more out of the same amount of energy than an uneducated man, exactly as a turbine gets more out of a column of falling water than the old-fashioned overshot wheel.

Yet the energy must be there, or the education must be useless. There must be driving force which will apply what you have learned to your problems. Nothing important was ever accomplished by education alone.

KIDDIES SIX

By Will M. Maupin

WRITING IT AT HOME

A BUNCH of four—four happy kids Check full of fun and pleasure. All four a mighty big expense.

But every one a treasure. And when I want it quiet like So I can do my writing.

The noise that bunch begins to make Sounds like two armies fighting.

One clammers over my machine; One asks for help with "numbers"; One for my pencil makes demand; One my tired knee encumbers. "A dozen eggs cost forty cents, What will three dozen cost?" And by the time I work it out My thread of thought is lost.

One sticky hand is reaching out To grasp my thinning locks. One piercing voice makes loud demand For help with building blocks. "My pencil's broke; please sharpen it So I can write the rest—" And then the thoughts I've garnered in Are all knocked gally west.

But when, at last, the sandman comes And all four little heads Are resting on the pillows white Of two soft, downy beds; And all is quiet 'round the house Where once the noise did ring, I start to write—and then can't think Of a dodgasted thing!

Mother's Cook Book

Scarlet tufts are growing in the green like flakes of fire; the wanderers of the prairie know them well, and call that flower the "painted cup."

EVERY DAY GOOD THINGS

THERE always will be in most families some waste bread. "Not a small bit should be wasted for there are countless ways of using it."

Nut Loaf.

Take one cupful of chopped nuts, two cupfuls of bread crumbs, one-half cupful of hot water, the same of melted butter, one egg well beaten, one teaspoonful of mushroom catsup, one-half teaspoonful of onion juice, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of pepper. Mix the ingredients in the order given, form in a roll and bake in a moderate oven one hour, basting occasionally

If you haven't got energy, cultivate it. Put your health in good condition and your physical energy will improve, and with physical energy you will gain mental energy.

Be careful how you use both. You can't settle a business tangle if you have been playing tennis all the morning. The exercise will use up the energy that ought to be expended on the job. Your brains can't use what your muscles have used already.

Energy is always capital, but it must be well and prudently invested.

Take care of yours. Add to it by care of your health, and by abundant mental exercise. Then expend it on important matters, and don't be afraid to expend it liberally. It is one thing of which the more you spend the more you will have, provided, of course, it is not foolishly wasted.

SCHOOL DAYS

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

FAR-OFF TOMORROW

THOSE happy-go-lucky individuals who manifest so little interest in the stirring events of life, which are buzzing like bees all around them, are often insensible to their lamentable delinquencies.

Occasionally, however, their consciousness flutters a moment, but, seemingly changing its benumbed mind, yawns, nods and falls asleep to dream.

But they are going to wake up and do something tomorrow.

They will yank the old world from its easy chair and wake its billion inhabitants with an earthquake.

Hitherto they have been shaping a brilliant course, not quite matured yet, or in a fit state to be presented in its entirety to their intimates, who have wept over them, prayed for them, and done their utmost to arouse them to action.

There is, however, no declaration on the part of these habituated drones of making undue haste.

The months and years stretch ahead in long rows on either side of tomorrow's path. Why fuss, fluster and worry?

Why should they bother themselves while youth is so full of delightful expectancies and time so abundant.

They are not seeking the dull, common roads in life, but the magnificent avenues that take direct to fame and wealth in the glare of sunlight and amid the plaudits of an admiring world, swept suddenly off its feet by the daring work of genius.

So the years drift by, and in their drifting there comes sometimes to these disciples of the god of futurists a petrifying fear that makes them sick at heart.

With an odd mixture of humility and pride stirring in their ill-arranged brain they are prompted to exertion. But they have unconsciously lost the skill which was theirs when life was vibrant with power. They reach out but they touch not. And now, all of a sudden, a terrible realization overwhelms them.

While they were loitering, putting off until tomorrow, their plodding associates were improving their time, gaining respect and an assured competence for the bare days of winter, sighting its appearance in the naked branches of the trees and drifts of snow-flakes.

Tomorrow is man's most terrible trouble maker, luring by promises which are seldom redeemed and leaving him ragged and alone at the crossroads, where youth and opportunity lie buried in the piled up heaps of dust and ill-spent years.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

TENY'S RIDE

Teny was a nice little girl, with a soft voice and sweet ways.

Now Teny had often been for short rides in automobiles and in wagons and in carriages, but she had never been for a long ride. So she was delighted when she was invited to go for a long, long ride and visit.

They started early, early in the morning. Yes, even before Mr. Sun got up Teny and those who had invited her to take the ride were up.

In fact, they had breakfast when it was dark. You see, they wanted to start as soon as it was daylight and they wanted to travel all day long in the automobile and then reach the place where they were going by the time night came.

Well, it was very strange, indeed, to eat oatmeal and to drink milk before the day had come. Not but what Teny had had milk to drink when it was dark, but she had never before had breakfast before daylight.

They started just at daylight and they went along in the automobile and saw very few people.

The hills were dark and cloudy at first and then they became bright and sunny and oh, how wonderful were some of the great ridges of mountains and hills which they passed. There were so many, huddled together, in so cosy and friendly a fashion.

Teny saw a cow giving another cow a nice friendly lick which was the cow's way of giving a morning kiss.

Then she looked about her and it seemed as though she saw some mountains right up in the clouds and she wondered if the Cloud Fairies and the Blue Mountain Top Fairies were having a party.

They passed the tiniest little brook—scarcely more than a pool—but it was very blue and very bright for a little of the blue sky was reflected in the pool.

"That's so nice," said Teny. "That just goes to show you how fine a big thing is."

"Now the sky is big as big can be, but the sky is ready to make a pretty reflection in a little bit of a brook. Now a small thing would feel the brook was beneath its notice."

"Of course it's a compliment to the brook, and I'm sure the brook appreciates it, for the brook really does seem to smile!"

They passed many birds, cat birds, goldfinches, oh, ever and ever so many birds and some of them called across the brooks to each other and from tree top to tree top or from one part of the lawn to another.

They saw ever so many waterfalls and some came down from the tops of the hills and the mountains.

Teny saw a sandpiper bird and an indigo bird and oh, so many others, as I've said.

And how she loved the rushing, sparkling brooks they passed. The brooks seemed to be in such a hurry, and yet they hurried along in so brilliant and beautiful a fashion.

"If some creatures hurried like that," Teny thought, "they would look so unattractively, but not the brooks. They dance and sparkle more than ever as they hurry over the pebbles."

They passed lots of hens and many roosters, and many, many cows.

Most of the cows were lying down, though a good many were walking or strolling around, chewing or idly gazing about out of their soft, big eyes.

Sometimes a cow got up as though just deciding to take a walk, but it was wonderful to see how little they hurried.

Two were lying down by each other and they looked as though they ought to be having a chat, but they did not seem to be saying a word to each other though from time to time they looked at each other.

And more and more the sun came out and the flowers and the birds and the country and all of nature did seem so beautiful.

Teny was very glad, too, to think that she had been out during a whole day from daylight to night-fall, for she felt that never before had she seen Mother Nature's children so steadily so as to become such friends with them.

Yes, the ride, the long, long ride was a beautiful one. And, of course, from time to time there were delicious picnic meals. I hope you didn't think Teny starved all day. Gracious no! She had a banana almost as soon as she started—and the meal kept up, for every one felt hungry out-of-doors.

Relief Is Found From Stomach Trouble

Hope for the millions of unfortunate men and women who are victims of stomach trouble is sounded by William Hoyle, of 16 Spring St., Bristol, Conn. Mr. Hoyle was a victim of stomach trouble in its worst form, but was completely restored to health by taking Tanlac. He says:

"For fifteen years I had attacks of stomach trouble, and had been in bed for three weeks when I got Tanlac, but three bottles built me up fifteen pounds, and made a well man of me. I am now eating steak and onions, and feel just fine in every way."

Undigested food ferments in the stomach and soon the entire system is filled with poisons. Tanlac was designed to restore the stomach to a healthy condition and build up the whole body. Millions everywhere have acclaimed its wonderful power. Get a bottle today.

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

Wouldn't Be Wasted.

During a snowstorm early in spring Jack with his shaggy-haired dog, Turk, came upon our porch to shovel off the snow.

Hearing the noise I opened the door to find Turk sitting up begging for something, so I asked Jack what he wanted.

"He wants bread and butter," I said. "Do you think he would eat it if I got it for him?"

"Well, if he don't I will," was the answer.—Exchange.

A city troop of girl scouts was increasing its treasury by holding a candy sale in the downtown district. A ragged little newsboy approached one of the uniformed girls and asked for a dime's worth of chocolate fudge. He laid down 15 cents, took the candy and started out.

"I thought you just wanted a dime's worth," said the little scout.

"I did; that's your tip," answered the youngster, as he darted out.—Indianapolis News.

DYED HER BABY'S COAT, A SKIRT AND CURTAINS WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her old, worn, faded things new. Even if she has never dyed before, she can put a new, rich color into shabby skirts, dresses, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything. Buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is guaranteed. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade or run.—Advertisement.

Waited Long for Fortune.

He might have been rich 15 years ago, but a Belgian who purchased a bond in 1903 hadn't applied for the list of numbers drawn in state lotteries in 1907. A poor man from the country happening to be in Antwerp for the first time for many years, entered the offices of the Calise Comunal to see if the bond which he had taken out in the loan of 1903 had won a prize in the yearly lottery. After waiting impatiently while the cashier searched the records he was informed that his number had been drawn in 1907, and that he was entitled to a bonus of 200,000 francs ($40,000 at normal exchange rates).

Youngstown, Ohio.—"Last fall I began to feel mean and my back hurt me and I could hardly do my little bit of housework. I was played out when I would just sweep one room and would have to rest. I would have to put a cushion behind me when I would sit down and at night I could not sleep unless I had something under my back. I had awful cramps every month and was just nearly all in. Finally my husband said to me one day, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine?' and I said, 'I am willing to take anything if I could get well again.' So I took one bottle and a second one and felt better and the neighbors asked me what I was doing and said, 'Surely it must be doing you good all right.' I have just finished my eighth bottle and I cannot express to you how I feel, the way I would like to. If you can use this letter you are welcome to it and if any woman does not believe what I have written to be true, she can write to me and I will describe my condition to her as I have to you."—Mrs. ELMER HEASLEY, 141 S. John D. Rockefeller attributes his success to the fact that he always made the other fellow put his proposition down in Black and White.

That's what the merchants of this town are doing for you.
Their advertisements speak for themselves in black and white.
And what they put down in black and white they stand back of.

They want your business. Their advertisements are an invitation to do business with them.

That's why they advertise, and the wise housekeeper never does her shopping nowadays until she has read the advertisements and posted herself on prices.

Is there an easier or better way of saving money?

It only requires a few minutes of your time to scan the advertisements.

The Boy Scout's motto is "Be Prepared."

That's what every housewife should be when she goes out to market.

Read the advertisements and you will not alone save many times the cost of the subscription to this paper, but you will save many dollars to add to your bank account.

Reading advertisements in this paper is profitable reading.
Try it for a month and check up the pennies you will save.

That's another Rockefeller maxim: "Save your pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves."

There are hundreds of pennies to be saved by reading the advertisements in this paper every issue.

The Good Samaritan

Large trees from little acorns grow. Pete McCarthy, the mission man, and a member of a large and pugnacious family, is becoming the largest factor for good living Joliet has known.

In the beginning he understands.
He can put himself in the other man's place, because he has been there. Then, he does not wait;
he goes. The man hanging about the streets at night, sick at heart, with no money, no lodging, and with little clothing to keep him warm, has Pete McCarthy on his trail.

PETER MCCARTHY

As to whether the man is deserving or not, sick or well, drunk or sober, religious or a criminal, McCarthy asks no questions, but takes him in, cleans him up, feeds and warms him, all from his own small salary, and then talks real religious business so directly, so simply and understandingly, and with an honest face, hope is put into the heart of the despairing. Ninety per cent.
of those who kneel at the Morning Star Mission remain true and faithful. "One must dry human tears with human needs," he says.

Some who are not down and out, but well-to-do, and merely careless or neglectful of their church-going, attracted by the directness and simplicity of the work, have joined his regular force.

"Every morning on my knees," said Mr. McCarthy, "I ask the Lord to give me a soul that day;
He does not fail." Every monthly report whole seasons together shows that he had more converts than days in the month.

The jail and the police station bear abundant fruit. Supt. Mc-Carthy visits them daily, and last year sent home 85 wayward oafs and girls.

Some question his authority to go out in the highways and byways for souls. "Where do you get it?" they ask.

"In the Bible," he answers.
(St. John, 15-16.) "Seek and ye shall enter. There is no monopoly in religion. Any time or place is suitable. Though your sins are as black as the darkest night, as many as the sands of the sea, if truly repentant, you are forgiven.
Justice would slay the sinner in his sin, but Jesus slays the sin and saves the sinner."
